FEMINISM IN BARNYARD

By NEA Service

COFFEYVILLE, KANSAS, June 25.—This is not a barnyard fable, but an actual demonstration of the results of chicken feminism. This Buff Orpington rooster, the property of Mrs. W. J. McDermitt, here, brooded and hatched six chicks.

While the hens of his barnyard strut independently around him, he nurses his chicks, clucking at them like a mother, yet not forgetting to crow at proper hours.

The rooster was hatched eleven months ago from an incubator. He still manifests some masculine independence, refusing to accept more than 15 chicks at one time.

NEW YORK, June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—At least seven persons were killed and more than two score injured this afternoon when a two-car train plunged from the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit elevated structure at Fifth and Flatbush avenues, Brooklyn, and was smashed to matchwood. Of the injured, at least five were expected to die.

Witnesses said that something went wrong with the first truck of the leading car and it plunged over the side of the structure dragging its mate with it. Part of the structure itself was carried away. In falling the train crushed two automobiles beneath it.

As the cars crashed into the street, they carried with them a mass of high tension electric wires and these, spitting sheets of blue flame, ignited the shattered wreckage of the antique wooden cars.

Firemen fighting amid terrified and screaming passengers soon checked the flames.

An unofficial explanation of the accident was that an axle on one of the cars had broken and that this had ripped up the outside rib causing the train to plunge to the street.

Amid screams, passengers climbed through broken windows, their faces streaming blood. Some were carried out. Others were able to crawl.

Two hospitals announced they had one dead and thirteen injured. Two dozen ambulances were called to the scene of the wreck and had great difficulty in making their way through the dense crowd about the wrecked cars. Four of the dead were women. The first identified dead were Alexander Lowsky and Mrs. Louise Wright, both of Brooklyn. Firemen tossed aside their helmets and plunged into the wreckage, tearing at the timbers with their hands, when axes and crow bars could not be used without endangering the injured.

The point where the accident occurred is one of the busiest in Brooklyn. Atlantic avenue is a transfer point for many surface cars as well as the meeting point of subways and elevated lines.

The train comprised two cars. After the first car struck, the second piled on top of it. Fire apparatus and all available ambulances were rushed to the scene. Police reserves were called to handle a crowd running into thousands which hastily assembled.

AIN'T NATURE WONDERFUL?

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—"Polly Alex" hasn't shouted for his cracker in 30 years. But his feathers keep on growing so fast they must be trimmed semi-annually. If they weren't, he wouldn't be able to sleep in peace in his present home—a glass case.

Alex died in 1893. Mrs. George Spellman, who was his mistress, has a large box full of clippings from his tail and wings. Louisiana state ornithologists say it is the only instance on record where a bird remained so long after death.

Ships Await Action On Liquor Supplies

NEW YORK, June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Two more "wet" liners steamed into port today while United States government officials were planning to move on six other ships which had docked over the weekend with liquor transported over the three-mile limit in defiance of the treasury department's dry ruling. The latest arrivals were the Anchor Line Tuscania and the French Line Suffren.

The schedule today called for removal of liquor from the Cunarder Derwent which arrived Friday, and whose seals were smashed late Saturday afternoon. Then dry agents planned to take up the case of the other week-end arrivals, Jaxia, Cedric, Carisla, Providence and Contender.

NEW YORK, June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Four trans-Atlantic liners which docked yesterday were waiting at their piers today for the next action on the part of government authorities toward the seizure of the supplies above the amount to be allotted them for medicinal use on their outward voyage. They were:

The White Star liner Cedric, the Cunarder Carisla, the Italian liner Contender, making her maiden trip to the United States and the French line Suffren.

No attempt was made by authorities yesterday to seize the liquor supplies and with the exception of affixing seals on the lockers no inspection was made.

Ten Killed By Tornado

ABERDEEN, S. D., June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Ten persons are said to have perished and scores of others were injured when a tornado laid waste wide stretches of prosperous farming country for forty miles in the vicinity of Redox and Hettlinger, North Dakota, Adams county, Sunday evening, according to word received here today.

Relief From Heat Brought By Rains

COLUMBUS, O., June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Cooler weather, the result of rains in various parts of the state, brought relief to sweltering thousands last night and today. Thunder showers are forecast for today.

Violent storms accompanied by wind and lightning in some sections yesterday, preceded the drop in temperature.

During the week ending last midnight 51 deaths in the state were attributed to heat.

Victims reported yesterday follow:

Thomas Smith, 23, drowned near Akron.

Thomas Mulligan, 35, drowned in Lake Erie at Cleveland.

John Hibler, 13, drowned near Youngstown.

Five persons were injured when wind blew the roof off a grand stand at Millster.

A hail storm accompanied by high winds that did considerable damage, visited Fostoria and Tiffin.

In the central part of the state communication lines were blown down and lightning struck a number of buildings.

Twelve Drown

DETROIT, MICH., June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Seeking relief from the sweltering heat Sunday, twelve persons were drowned in the rivers and lakes of Michigan. Grand Rapids held the record for drownings, according to reports when three persons lost their lives and two were drowned in Detroit. The official temperature here was 94 and Grand Rapids reported a high mark of 93.

Amundsen Hops Off?

SEATTLE, WASH., June 25.—(By the United Press)—Reports were in circulation here today that Captain Roald Amundsen and Lieutenant Oskar Olundahl had "hopped off" from Wainwright in their attempt to fly across the North Pole to Spitzbergen. The report however was without confirmation. The last reports generally were from Christanna to the effect that Amundsen had been forced to postpone and perhaps abandon his flight due to damage to his plane.

Agriculture Unrest Greatest Peril To Republican Hopes

BY DAVID LAWRENCE (Copyright, 1923)

ENROUTE WITH PRESIDENT HARDING TO DENVER, June 25.—Agricultural unrest—the greatest peril today to Republican hopes and aspirations stared President Harding in the face as he crossed Kansas, the heart of the wheat belt.

Senator Arthur Capper, Republican who comes up next time for reelection, dined with the President and told him of the results of an intensive study of conditions in Kansas made ever since Congress adjourned last March. The Kansas Senator has been in nearly every county in the state, and has talked to more than 75,000 persons. His conclusion is that while conditions are better politically than they were, there nevertheless has not been enough improvement to eliminate altogether the spirit of restlessness which was manifested in the elections last autumn.

President Harding tackled the job of converting the farmer to an enhanced interest in republicanism by dwelling upon two basic questions—transportation, which means freight rates, and the improvement of agricultural credits.

The President knew that in Kansas City he was talking to a community strongly prejudiced against the consolidation of railroad systems as proposed. He knew also that he was touching the farmers' interest in it.

President's Trip Marred By Fatal Automobile Accident

DENVER, COLO., June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Thomas F. Dawson, Colorado state historian and nationally known newspaper man, died this morning in a Denver hospital, the third victim of the auto accident in Bear Creek Canyon yesterday.

Mr. Dawson was with the group of newspaper men in President Harding's party, which arrived here yesterday morning.

DENVER, COLO., June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Two were killed and two others injured seriously late yesterday afternoon when an automobile, one of a caravan in which President Harding's special train was riding through the mountains, plunged over a cliff in Bear Creek Canyon, dropping 75 feet into the river.

The dead are:

Sumner Curtis, representative of the Republican national committee, accompanying the Harding party, and for many years a widely known newspaper correspondent.

Tommy French, a statistician for the Great Western Sugar Company, of Denver, who was driving the car.

The injured are:

Donald A. Craig, manager of the Washington Bureau of the New York Herald, and Thomas F. Dawson, for 20 years a member of the Washington staff of the Associated Press, and later connected with various newspapers.

In recent years Mr. Dawson has been director of the historical department of the Colorado Historical and Natural History Society. Mr. Craig sustained a badly lacerated scalp, bruised shoulder and suffered severe shock. Early this morning, it was said, at the hospital to which he had been taken, that he would recover unless complications developed.

Mr. Dawson suffered a broken ankle, bruised shoulder and scalp lacerations. His condition showed slight improvement this morning, physicians said, but due to his advanced years, his recovery is still in doubt.

The newspaper men, who had gone on the trip as guests of the Denver Press Club, had climbed Lookout Mountain and were returning through Bear Creek Canyon, 25 miles from Denver when the accident occurred.

The motor car was rounding Lookout Glass Curve, one of the sharpest bends in the Denver mountain park (Continued On Page Three)

No Ground For Protest

LONDON, June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Stanley Baldwin, the prime minister, stated in the House of Commons today that there was no ground for protest if British seamen seals were broken within United States territorial waters by vessels of the United States Customs service. His statement was in answer to questions whether Great Britain requested America's right to break the seal on liquor on board.

MADISON, WIS., June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Noah J. Bultes, of Dayton, was drowned here Saturday night while bathing.

Convict Captured

MARQUETTE, MICH., June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Capture of George Natchoss, escaped convict from Marquette prison, yesterday ended one of the most desperate fights ever made by a man for his liberty from the Upper Michigan branch prison. Natchoss was shot 14 times by a posse which had been hunting him since last Wednesday. He died a few minutes after reaching a hospital.

The escaped convict was surrounded in a swamp near Perkins, between Maple Ridge and Escanaba. The members of the posse raked the underbrush with volley after volley of shots. Natchoss replied at first with fire from his own weapon, but later the firing from the posse ceased.

Officers feared a trap, but crept carefully upon their prey. He was found lying on the ground with his revolver beside him. Officers said he apparently had fought until he dropped.

Natchoss was sentenced from Pontiac for life imprisonment on charge of murder. He escaped a week ago Friday with George Blochus. First trace was found of them Wednesday, when a store at Maple Ridge was robbed. Blochus was captured the day after the store robbery when he was wounded.

"Don't—I'll Go With You!"

The past which she thought was gone forever had risen before her. The awful grimaces, the sorrows of that life were repulsive to her. Since she had escaped it, she had been supremely happy—yet to save him who she loved from harm, she would go back to it!

The great test of love and devotion—but would her husband understand? It was his test, too! What a theme, what a tremendous climax for a great picture.

Dragged By Cow; Badly Hurt

Charles Fuller, aged 37, a well known N. & W. switchman lies in a serious condition in Hempstead hospital the result of injuries sustained Sunday afternoon when he was dragged about 300 yards by a cow he has just turned into his pasture just west of the golf links in East Portsmouth. He was injured internally. A chain was attached to the cow and in stepping over it his left foot caught. This frightened the cow and it started to run. Fuller was unable to free himself and was dragged all over the pasture before the cow became exhausted and stopped. Dr. A. B. Mills was called and after learning that Fuller was in a serious condition ordered him removed to Hempstead hospital.

There it was learned that no bones had been broken, but Fuller was in a semi-conscious condition and complained of pains through his chest and abdominal region. He was no better Monday, suffering great pain.

Mrs. Slavens Succumbs

Injuries suffered by Mrs. Bridget Agnes Slavens aged 64 when she jumped out of a second story window of the Eagle building last Friday proved fatal. Mrs. Slavens, passing away in Mercy hospital at 11 a. m. Sunday. She suffered a fractured skull in the fall and never regained consciousness. In addition to her husband, J. M. Slavens who is in feeble condition, she leaves one brother, Dan Murphy of Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Slavens had been a well known and highly respected resident of this city for many years. The body will be shipped to Louisville, Ky., and the last rites will be held there Wednesday. Owing to his feeble condition Mr. Slavens will not be able to make the trip to Louisville.

Both Arms Gone; Still Cheerful

Motorists passing Hempstead hospital Sunday and Monday, felt like stopping their machines and offering their sympathy to a smiling young man who nodded at them. The young man was G. W. McClung, N. & B. brakeman, who ten days ago, lost both arms in an accident in the East Portsmouth yards, one being cut off near the arm and the other just below the elbow. "It sure was hard luck for you," a Times man sympathetically said to McClung as he passed him on the way to get a story in the hospital.

"Oh, I don't know. I'm here and in good health. That is something to be thankful for," was the cheerful reply made by McClung. He is a son of Albert McClung of Lucasville, and boards at 2362 Eighth street.

Will Present Clever Play

consolidation under rigorous government supervision were not put into effect.

Mr. Harding's idea is that the larger systems should be so constituted that the weaker and unprofitable lines would lean upon the stronger and profitable ones until the growth of the country makes them all earn a just return upon the capital invested.

The one trouble about communities in this part of America is that they disbelieve the hard luck stories of the railroads and have an idea the transportation interests of the nation, generally speaking, are making all kinds of money. That may or may not be true but it is going to be hard to put through any more substantial guarantees to the railroads which come out of the public pocketbook.

It is much as consolidation of the railroad systems is admittedly of no avail under the voluntary system because, as the President says, they cannot reconcile their conflicting interests the only chance of getting them to agree to "voluntary consolidation" would be to "stimulate the competition." This is taken to mean that Mr. Harding would propose a high limit of railroad profit than they now are permitted to earn and that he will argue for it on the theory that ultimately it will bring lower freight rates to the farmer.

Perhaps more startling than the President's announced purpose of asking Congress to legislate further on the problem of voluntary consolidation of railway systems was his statement at Kansas City that he believed the United States Railroad Labor Board ought not to be abandoned.
Mr. Harding says it never has had the "cooperation of employer and employee for which its author hoped," and declares that modifications ought to be made which would make the board more effective. The significant point of the reference to the labor board was this statement:

"I am frank to say I do not hope for compliance on the part of the employees so long as decisions are ignored by the managers."

Looking at the President's speech from a political angle, as no doubt it will be viewed by many because of the proximity of the presidential campaign, it is noteworthy that Mr.
Harding at Kansas City took occasion to remove one or two impressions concerning his attitude toward labor. He explained anew that he did not forbid strikes when he voted for the famous anti-strike provision in the Senate which subsequently became a part of the Esch-Cummins transportation law. This vote often plagued Mr. Harding since. He says the anti-strike provisions did not deny the right to strike but merely required that both sides submit their disputes to an impartial tribunal "empowered to consider facts, determine the merits, and make an award." The President insists that he "does not believe it possible under our form of government to compel men to work against their will." And that he does not think it "desirable under any form of government."

Mr. Harding's overtures toward labor are in line with previous uter-ances but he has in his Kansas City speech indicated that the solution of industrial strife rests after all in America not upon mandates of law or compulsory processes of arbitration but upon mutual faith and honesty on the part of employers and employees. He gives no explicit formula but nevertheless does not take the position so often attributed to him that he would sponsor movements to forbid absolutely the right to strike. Speaking of labor the president also made a pointed reference to the high labor costs when, in explaining the advantages of consolidation of the nation's railway mileage into several major systems, he told the farmers of the country that they must frankly take note of the wage development which will yield no reduction in the principal item of operating cost of America's railroads and seek conditions under which reductions in other fixed charges may be obtained.

He suggests economies in terminal costs and rentals as one factor and general reduction in overhead as another.

Mr. Harding did not fail to take into account the sentiment of the agricultural region in which he is traveling. Here the revolt of last year has not subsided. The farmer discontent is noticeable and constitutes the biggest problem of the political future, especially since he has now removed the world court issue and found domestic questions of paramount importance.

Death Balks Plan Of Father To Make Trip To See Baby Son First Time

The treacherous Scioto river claimed its first 1923 victim lesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock, when John Taylor, colored, aged twenty years, of 1213 Thirteenth street, rear, went down and drowned before anybody could reach him.

A pathetic incident of the drowning was that the victim had been saving his money and was about ready to go to the city and baby boy, whom he had never seen, in Chattanooga, Tenn. He was married in Caldwell, Georgia, took his wife to Chattanooga and came here nearly a year ago. A son was born to them last Christmas and Taylor had been looking forward to a trip there soon.

Friends say Taylor had been trying to get some one to go in swimming with him for the last two Sundays

but did not succeed until yesterday.

William Domineck, who lives at the same house as Taylor, and James Calvert, a neighbor, accompanied him to the river bank of Stockham's lee plantation yesterday morning about nine o'clock. They had been swimming all morning when Taylor decided he wanted to swim across the river.

Neither of his companions would follow him, so he went alone. His companions say he got nearly to the other bank safely, started back, and when he reached the center of the stream he fell once and sank beneath the water. They started to his rescue but he did not come up again.

Domineck stated that other boys were near the drowning man in a boat but they were afraid to help him.

Being a good swimmer, it is possible that Taylor became tangled in some of the debris that fills the river, and could not get loose.

The river was dragged and bystanders dove many times in an endeavor to find the body, but at press time it had not been recovered.

John Rucker, with whom Taylor had stayed for the past few years, had been asked by him to go swimming for quite a while. Rucker declined and when Taylor started Sunday with other friends he begged him not to go, telling him that the river was treacherous and had claimed a number of victims each year.

Taylor is well known in Portsmouth and leaves many friends.

Harding Grief-Stricken

DENVER, COLO., June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Buried with grief over the tragedy of yesterday which resulted in the death of one member of his party, severed the life cord of a Denver host and ended his visit here in a hospital suffering from injuries. President Harding today faced his program with a heavy heart, but compelled by necessity and lack of additional time to carry on as the original plans for his stay required.
This included a parade through the city, a greeting of school children at the state house, a formal address at the auditorium and a visit to Cheyenne, Wyoming, later in the day, where another address was to be delivered.

Before commencing the day's duties, however, the president obtained reports from the hospital as to the condition of Donald A. Craig, manager of the New York Herald's Washington Bureau, and of Thomas F. Dawson, of Denver, both of whom were injured when the automobile in which they were riding yesterday, plunged over a 75 foot embankment and into Sumner Curtis, of Washington, D.
C., a representative of the Republican National Committee, and Tommie French, of Denver, who was driving the machine as host to the visitors of the presidential party.

President Harding was encouraged by the reports he received and instructed the hospital authorities to keep him advised concerning the condition of Mr. Craig and Mr. Dawson as he continued his tour to Cheyenne,
Salt Lake City, and other points along the route to Alaska. There was some indication that a change would be made in the program beginning after the Cheyenne visit and that the proposed trip into Zion Park, Utah, would be abandoned, the party motoring from Ogden to Salt Lake.

"Wet-Dry Controversy Recognized As One Of Whether Laws Of This Country Can Be And Will Be Enforced" - Harding

President Appeals To States To Aid Dry Enforcement

DENVER, COLO., June 25.—President Harding in his address here today, dealt with the wet and dry question, stating that the federal government would enforce the dry regulations, but asking that the States aid in the work and not shift the responsibility.

My Countrymen: It has been said that "Of the making of books there is no end." Quite as truthfully it might be paraphrased, "Of the making of laws there is no end." We Americans undoubtedly hold in high regard the making of a multiplicity of laws, State and National. If we were as assiduous about obeying and enforcing obedience to them as we are in demanding and enacting them, there would be no particular occasion for me to address you today on the general subject of law enforcement. We all recognize that to secure effective administration of the laws, to establish in the public mind an attitude of willing acceptance and obedience to laws, is the most impressive mark of a civilized community.

Laws, of course, represent restrictions upon individual liberty, and in these very restrictions make liberty more secure. The individual surrenders something of his privilege to do as he pleases for the common good, and so organized society is possible. It is successful just about in proportion as laws are wise as they represent self-interest and intelligent public opinion, and as they are obeyed. Civilization had to travel a long way before it came to be commonly accepted that even an unwise law ought to be enforced in orderly fashion, because such enforcement would insure its repeal or modification, also in orderly fashion, if that were found desirable.

Defends Americans
At this point it is worth while to raise a voice in protest against the vast volume of half-baked criticism that is constantly aimed against Americans, on the ground that they are alleged to be an undisciplined and lawless community. The criticism, of course, arises out of the fact that during the period of a very short national life during which the currents of human affairs and interests have moved more rapidly than in any other period of history, we have been under the necessity to establish institutions, laws, modes of administration, which would meet not only the requirements of a new community established in a new world, but also permit adaptation to rapidly changing conditions. It comes also from the very erroneous impression of many nations that our liberty is a license, instead of guaranteed freedom under the law.

Older countries have had the privilege of developing laws and institutions slowly, gradually, painstakingly, through multiplied centuries in which change was commonly extremely slow. America had to build on the foundation of long-established European models not always adaptable to our requirements, and therefore necessitating many experiments in modification and readaptation. Moreover, we started our experiment just at the time when the old medieval order was being changed at high speed by the processes of the industrial and social revolution which marked emergence from the later middle ages into the dawning era of modern industrialism, modern science, and modern democratic procedures in government.

The founders of our country were compelled to establish institutions here, in a time when their whole life, political and industrial traditions was being wrecked by the most amazing revolution that human society has known. In the circumstances, their achievement in laying the foundation, and our later one in building our present superstructure upon it, represents an accomplishment I believe without parallel. Thus viewed, I think we will find all justification for satisfaction in our progress thus far, and confidence in an assured future.

Must Solve Problems Gradually
Our troubles are the problems of a relatively new country, and of a new form of political organization, in a time of social flux. We shall not succeed if we attempt to solve them all at once; but no more shall we succeed if we assume to ignore their existence, to shut our eyes to the fact that they are before us. The very basis of our political establishment is the idea of a dual sovereignty, of the States and the Nation; the idea of concurrent authority and concurrent responsibility. That is so elemental in our system that to do away with it would amount to demolishing our whole scheme of government. Certain functions and responsibilities have been imposed upon the National Government, while others have been reserved to the States. Re-green these two authorities there will always be unavoidably something like a twilight zone. Personally, I have never liked that phrase. I have regarded it as a peculiarly unfortunate and misleading description. The intermediate zone which receives light from two sovereign luminaries ought to be the best, not the worst, illuminated region. If we will but realize the necessity of real co-operation between National and State authority, if we will only develop effective means for the exercise thereof of concurrent jurisdiction.

The problem of concurrent jurisdiction is not a new one brought to us with the eighteenth amendment. It is as old as the Federal Government. It has required to be dealt with by Congress and legislatures, by executives and by courts, in a multitude of relations to commerce, finance, transportation, and indeed the whole realm of concerns in our complex society. It has demanded our attention in all the multitude of issues ranging from the regulation of trusts and transportation, and even of certain relations with foreign governments, to the proposal for a uniform statute of marriage and divorce.

Always a Way to Meet It
There have always been those who insisted that particular policies could not be carried out because of the conflict of jurisdictions; but experience has proved that whenever a given issue became so acute that evasion was impossible, procedures have been devised for dealing with it. Whenever we go back to the debates over the enactment of the anti-trust law, or the discussions of the interstate commerce measures, must recognize that these were but varying phases of the same general question that comes before us in connection with the enforcement of the prohibition law.

A good deal of useful accomplishment toward uniformity and clarification of State and National laws has been effected through the efforts of the American Bar Association. This, of course, has been an unofficial effort—a labor of love and patriotism conducted by men especially qualified for its direction. It has seemed possible that something rather more formal and official might be evolved from these beginnings, which should help in perfecting the co-ordination. President Roosevelt recognized this possibility when he called a council of governors to consider problems then demanding harmonious and uniform treatment. Under the present administration a similar course has been adopted in bringing together the State executives for consideration of methods to give full force and effect to the concurrent authority of States and Nation under the eighteenth amendment.

We have dealt upon the same general principle in fixing a program for the utilization of the water of the Colorado River. Indeed I have thought these conferences contained the germ of an idea which may some day grow into a useful auxiliary to our constitutional system: a formal council of co-ordination, representing State and National Governments, authorized to examine into particular needs in this area, to devise projects for concerted action, and to propose them formally to the Congress and the legislatures. Without possessing any powers of legislation or of mandatory initiation, such a body might render an advisory service which, if made permanent and continuing, would conceivably be of great advantage.

Will Not Be Repeated
But for the present there are immediate problems before us which can not await the possible creation of any such slow moving mechanism of public opinion creation. The prohibition amendment to the Constitution is the basic law of the land. The Volstead Act has been passed, providing a code of enforcement. I am convinced that they are a snail, and a greatly mistaken minority who believe the eighteenth amendment will ever be repealed. Details of enforcement policy doubtless will be changed as experience dictates. Further, I am convinced that whatever changes may be made will represent the sincere purpose of effective enforcement, rather than moderation of the general policy. It will be the part of wisdom to recognize the fact that they stand.

The general policy of the States to support the prohibition program, and to cooperate with the Federal Government regarding it, is attested by the fact that almost unanimously the States have passed enforcement laws of their own. A difficulty, however, arises at this point. A good deal of testimony comes to Washington that some States are disposed to abdicate their own police authority in this matter, and to turn over the burden of prohibition enforcement to the Federal authorities. It is a singular fact that some States which successfully enforced their own prohibition statutes before the eighteenth amendment were adopted have latterly gone backwards in this regard.

Communities in which the policy was frankly accepted as productive of highly beneficial results, and in which there was no widespread protest so long as it was merely a State concern, report that since the Federal Government became in part responsible there has been a growing feeling on the part of State authorities about enforcing the law. Doubtless this is largely due to a misconception, too widely entertained, that the Federal Government has actually taken over the real responsibility. The fact is quite the contrary. The Federal Government is not equipped with the instrumentalities to make enforcement locally effective. It does not maintain either a police or a judicial establishment adequate to or designed for such a task. If the enforcement of this policy, those functions which are obviously within its proper province. These are compliance in all its aspects as it relates to international commerce, the importation and exportation of liquors, the collection of Federal revenue, the prevention of smuggling, and in general the enforcement of the law within the proper realm of Federal authority. But the business of local enforcement, by States and cities, ought to be in the hands of the State and local authorities, and it should be executed in all sincerity and good faith, as other laws are presumed to be executed.

No Relaxation By Government
What I am saying must not be construed as indicating any relaxation of the National Government's purpose to do its full duty in this matter. I have no doubt that if the burden is cast, in undue proportion, upon the national authority the Federal Government will not only under this administration but under whatever others may come in the future, assume and discharge the full obligation. But I am pointing out that this ought to be understood by the public opinion and the administrative machinery of the whole country. For myself, I am confident that we are passing now through the most difficult stage of this matter, and that as time passes there will be a more and more willing acceptance by authorities everywhere of the unalterable obligation of law enforcement. The country and the Nation will not permit the law of the land to be made a byword.

The issue is fast coming to be recognized, not as an issue between wets and dries, and a question between those who believe in prohibition and those who do not, not a contention between those who want to drink and those who do not; it is fast being raised above all that, to recognize as an issue of whether the laws of this country can be and will be enforced. So far as the Federal Government is concerned, and I am very sure also, so far as concerns the very great majority of the State governments and the local governments, it will be enforced. A gratifying, indeed it may fairly be said an amazing progress has been made in the last few years toward better enforcement.

Think States Should Abandon It
It is a curious illustration of loose thinking, that some people have proposed, as a means to protecting the fullest rights of the States, that the States should abandon their part in enforcing the prohibitory policy. That means simply an invitation to the Federal Government to exercise powers which should be exercised by the States. Instead of being an assertion of hypocrites. There can be no less in this land paramount to that of enforcement of the law.

It is easy to understand the conditions out of which much unrest has developed, but it is not easy to comprehend so much of complacency amid a developing peril. I want to give warning against that peril.

Many citizens, not teetotalers in their habits, lawfully acquired stores of private stocks in anticipation of prohibition, pending the ratification of the amendment and the enactment of the regulatory law. Many others have had no scruple in seeking supplies from those who vend in defiance of the law. The latter practice is rather too costly to be indulged by the masses, so there are literally American millions who resent the lawful possessions of the few, the lawless practices of a few more, and rebel against the denial of the vast majority. Universal prohibition in the United States would occasion far less discontent than partial prohibition and partial indulgence.

It is the partial indulgence which challenges the majesty of law, but the greater crime is the impairment of the moral fiber of the Republic. The resentful millions have the example of law defiance by those who can afford to buy, and are reckless enough to take the risk, and there is incalculable a contempt for law which may some day find expression in far more serious form.

Not Safe For Citizens

I do not see how any citizen who cherishes the protection of law in organized society may feel himself secure when he himself is the example of contempt for law. Clearly there is call for awakened conscience and awakened realization of true self-interest on the part of the few who will themselves suffer most when reverence for law is forgotten and passion is expressed in destructive lawlessness. Ours must be a law-abiding Republic, and reverence and obedience must spring from the influential and the leaders among men, as well as obedience from the humble citizen, else the temple will collapse.

Whatever satisfaction there may be in indulgence, whatever objection there is to the so-called invasion of personal liberty, neither counts when the supremacy of law and the stability of our institutions are menaced. With all good intention the majority sentiment of the United States has sought by law to remove strong drink as a curse upon the American citizen, but ours is a larger problem now to remove lawless drinking as a menace to the Republic itself.

There is another phase of law observance, to which reference is impelling. I am thinking of the law of the golden rule, a statute made of the Man of Nazareth, who brought new peace and new hope to mankind, and proclaimed service to men the highest tribute to God.

Service is both the inspiration and the accomplishment of quite everything worth while which impels us onward and upward. With service which the Nazarene would approve are associated all our ideals and our finer aspirations. We accept the doctrine for ourselves, as we ought, because we must be firmly established and healthfully and hopefully strong ourselves before we can be effectively helpful to others.

Would Aid World

But I believe the law of service demands our largest helpfulness to the world. No, I do not mean entanglements in Old World politics or sponsorship for the adjustment of Old World controversies. I do mean the commitment of this Nation to the promotion and preservation of international peace, to the judicial settlement of disputes which, unless settled, lead to added irritation, strained relations, and ultimately to war.

I would like the United States to give our prestige, our influence, and our power to make the International Court of Justice an outstanding and universally accepted agency of judicial determination of justifiable questions and the peaceful way to international settlements. It is too much to say that such a court will give a guaranty against war, but it will prove the longest step toward war prevention and maintained peace since the world began.

In such a thought is concern for our own country no less than anxiety for a world which is finding readjustment difficult. I am thinking of more than our own freedom from conflict with all its attending burdens and sorrows. I am thinking of our American having a commitment to an exciting enterprise to save us from the reaction to mere sordid existence, and to keep our hearts aglow while we serve as a vanguard in the march of civilization.

The World War was a frightful calamity, from which the earth will not have fully recovered in a century to come. Nearly five years have passed and peace is not yet secure. Our own cost was beyond an understandable appraisal, but I sometimes feel it was worth much of its cost, because it brought an American awakening and revealed the soul of the Republic. We experienced the supreme commitment. We saw our America ready to do or die for our concept of civilization and its guaranties. It exalted us and made up a better, a more patriotically devoted people. I would like to go on, with soul aflame in eagerness to aid humankind, while promoting security for ourselves.

Must Advance Humankind
This is no under appraisal of the essentials of material existence. We may rejoice in the flood tides of material good fortune, we may become the meek and lowly of the Republic, through God's bounty in creation and man's genius in development, but we aren't living the becoming life unless we are seeking to advance humankind as we achieve for ourselves. I would like the ages of envy and hate, and conquest and pillage, and armed greed and mad ambitions to be followed by understanding and peace, by the rule of law where force had reigned, the decisions of a world court rather than the decrees of national armies, the observance of the golden rule as the relieves chafed skin-

MEN whose outdoor life causes skin irritation and tenderness, through excessive perspiration, rubbing of the clothing, etc., will find blessed comfort in the use of Resinol. This soothing ointment—so widely used in the treatment of eczema and kindred ills—cools the skin, stops the smarting, reduces the inflammation almost immediately. Try it and you will be delighted with its quick action.

You will also like Resinol Soap and Resinol Shaving Stick. They contain the same soothing Resinol ingredients which enable them to thoroughly cleanse the skin yet leave it free from sensitiveness and smarting.

Don't wait—get the Resinol trio from your druggist today. A week's trial will convince you.

A wedding of local interest was solemnized at two o'clock Saturday afternoon when Miss Helen Thissen of this city became the bride of Mr. David Lewis of Columbus. The impressive ceremony was read at the home of the bridegroom in the presence of the immediate families and friends, with Rev. E. A. Bowden of the Trinity M. E. Church officiating.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thissen of 1067 Robinson avenue, was lovely in a frock of blue silk tulle, with corresponding accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses.

The attendants were Miss Sarah Williams, an intimate friend of the bride, and Mr. James Lewis, brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Lewis is popular with a large circle of friends in this city.

Mr. Lewis holds a responsible position with the Roller Bearing Company of Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will make their home in Columbus.

Hair Often Ruined

By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best, many soaps and shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is a Mulstified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and gentle), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulstified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulstified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store; it is inexpensive and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure and ask for "Mulstified."—Advertisement.

Miss Mary Alice Davis of Bristow, Okla., who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mohl, 1017 Fourth street for the past week, left Sunday for a several days' visit to relatives and friends in Jackson before making an extended visit through the South.

Why? Haven't we had this finished, yes, why? The driving public are all anxious to know why. Who and what are really back of this paving job that is holding it up and why are the tax paying public subjected to the conditions of this road? If Harper and Ruel can finish three miles along the same pike as quickly as they did why must we allow some one else to take so much time—yes, why?—but what I started to tell you was that some of our Oxfords will last as long as it has taken the contractor to get his job done,—no, only seven bucks, black or tan.

KOLAT LAXATIVE TABLETS

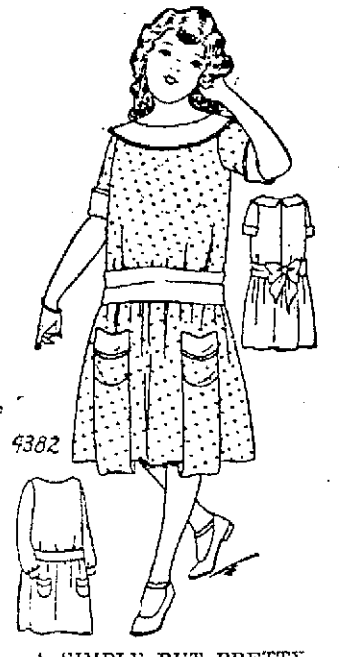

When the tiny veins of the head become clogged, thereby preventing the blood from functioning freely, congestion follows and the resultant pressure upon these veins causes painful, throbbing headaches, neuritis, toothache, neuritis and neuralgia.

Kolat relieves this congestion by distending these veins and allowing the blood to flow freely and consequently removes the pains and aches described.

Kolat also acts on the bowels, cleansing the system of poisonous waste, corrects stomach disorders and leaves no distressing after effects. It is also a splendid aid in eradicating rheumatism. At druggists. Sold by Presler Pharmacy, 1218 E. Street, Wurster Bros., Red Cross Pharmacy, H. J. Brandel.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton

MERRY-GO-ROUND TOWN

"You don't need any money here."

The next place the cute little train stopped at was called Merry-Go-Round Town.

As soon as the Twins got off at the station they heard the music. It didn't take long for them to find the place where the Merry-Go-Round was, because all they had to do was to go in the direction the sounds came from.

"Ding! Ding!" went a bell when the Twins were almost up to it. Then the music stopped and the Merry-Go-Round slowed down.

Right beside them was a little coop with a wire window which had "Tickets" in large letters over the top.

"I wish we had some money," whispered Nancy to Nick, "I'd love to have a ride!"

Just then a funny little fellow stuck his head up over the counter of the little coop and said, "You don't need any money here. We give our tickets away for nothing."

"Goody!" cried both Twins. "That's kind!"

"How many?" asked the funny little man.

"Six tickets, a piece, please," said Nick quickly.

"Oh, we won't have time," declared Nancy. "The train will go without us. You see," she explained to the funny little ticket man, "we are traveling through Choo-Choo Land to hunt for my rag doll who is lost. And we just have a short time at each station. You didn't happen to see Ruby Joan, did you?"

"No, I didn't," answered the little man kindly. "I don't believe she's been here at all! But now that you are here, you may as well enjoy yourselves. Hop on and ride as long as you like and I'll telephone to Mister Toots, the engineer of the Choo-Choo Express, to wait for you."

"Thank you," cried the Twins racing towards the Merry-Go-Round and climbing on.

They rode on every one of the animals from the zebra to the giraffe. It was enough to make them dizzy for the rest of their lives.

After while they went back to their train, after thanking the kind little man.

It wasn't long before the stinging hornets became too much for the Bad Giant and he let go of the tower pole and started to run. The hornets followed him as he went tearing through the woods and Jack came out of the tower house just as the tower pole fell snugly against the limb of a tree.

As the Bad Giant finally disappeared, Jack decided that it was safe for him to climb out of the tree. As he reached the ground he heard the bushes rustle nearby and, there, right beside him, stood little Trixie's kangaroo. And Trixie and Cucumber were with him. (Continued)

Mrs. Youngblood Out With Facts In Case

Declares Tanlac Restored Her When She Had Complete Break-down And Nothing Else Would Help - Ended Indigestion Entirely She States.

"Tanalac has done me so much good during the past two years that I can't help but praise it," says Mrs. C. N. Youngblood, 207 Housington St., Massillon, Ohio. "Without it I simply could not have withstood the awful sickness and complications I have endured. I had awful attacks of nervousness and dizziness, and would break down completely, and Tanlac is the only medicine I have ever found enough and I believe we shall find that this soldier, who's had shell shock, turned on Pendean and cut his throat, then, fondly hoping to hide the crime, got away with the body. "Redmayne was a big, powerful man and he may have struck without intention to kill; but this means more than a blow with a fist. I think that he was a homicidal maniac and probably plotted the job beforehand with a madman's limited cunning; and if that is so, there's pretty sure to be news waiting for us at Princetown."

The correctness of Brendon's deduction was made manifest within an hour, and the operations of Robert Redmayne defined up to a point. A man was waiting at the police station—George French, ostler at Two Bridges hotel, on West Dart.

"Can you tell me anything about the lady to whom your uncle is engaged?" "I can give you her name and address. But I have never seen her." "Had your husband seen her?" "Not to my knowledge. Indeed I can say certainly that he never had. She is a Miss Flora Reed and she is stopped with her mother and father at the Singer Hotel, Paignton. Her brother, my uncle's friend in France, is also there I believe." "Thank you very much. If I hear nothing further, I go to Paignton this evening." "Why?" "To pursue my inquiry and see all those who know your uncle." Mark rose. "You shall hear from me tomorrow," he said. "And if I do not go to Paignton, I will see you again tonight."

"Thank you—you are very kind," Brendon returned to the police station and was astonished to find that Robert Redmayne continued at large. OHIO TO HAVE COMPLETE ROSTER OF DEMOCRATIC VICTORY CLUBS

Washington Bureau, Portsmouth Times. June 25.—Ohio is the first state in the Union to have a complete roster of Democratic Victory Clubs, it was declared at headquarters of the Democratic National committee here today.

With organization of thirty ward clubs in Cleveland rapidly progressattention from national headquarters need be given this phase of preparation for 1924.

Of 300 clubs to be formed in Ohio, 160 will be in towns from 2,000 population up, while 140 more will be practically ward organizations in the larger cities. Sam Kinneer, for eight years Democratic postmaster at Columbus during President Wilson's regime, reported today that he has 25 clubs in the process of formation there.

Most of the club organizers were "hand picked" from national committee headquarters. Others are enthusiastic volunteers who wrote or wired Chairman Cordell Hull for permission to go ahead with the organization of units in their neighborhoods.

Reports from Akron and Youngstown, the two most important centers in northeastern Ohio outside of Cleveland, are that Len C. Koplin and Joseph Heffernan, the respective organizers in those towns, are rapidly gathering members for their clubs which will be ready to announce the filling of their quotas in a few days' time.

Many prominent Ohio Democrats appear in the list of Victory organizers. At Portsmouth, in southern Ohio, former Mayor Adam Frick, described by party leaders here as "a live wire," has been given the reins and is progressing with the organization of a club of 50 members.

The most "conservative" figure placed by prominent Democrats on the amount they expect to raise by "Victory" clubs is $1,500,000. This will be produced through $10 subscriptions by club members, half of which will not be paid until 1924. They stated today that the whirlwind start reported from Ohio in organizing clubs indicated that the subscription total for the nation would run close to a quarter of a billion dollars.

This money will be used for the 1924 campaign and for the payment of an existing deficit. It is claimed that it will free the party from any suspicion of affiliation with the "interests" and will inspire public confidence.

Among the reports on club organization received during the day at Democratic headquarters was one from William Jennings Bryan stating that he had gained fifty-one members for his club at Miami, Fla.

Real Estate And Fire Insurance

1. Your choice of either an 80 foot frontage or a 40 foot frontage on the north side of Sixth street just off from Chillicothe street, and right in the heart of the business center, one 40 foot lot contains an 8 room brick dwelling and the other 40 feet contains a fine 7 room frame dwelling. We now have a sale for the west 40 feet but cannot sell the one until we find a buyer for both.

People of Portsmouth, here is one of the most astonishing values ever offered here. This property should double in value within the next four years. This would be an ideal place for a doctor, dentist, display room, picture show, automobile salesroom or a mercantile building.

Price To Those Interested

2. The magnificent home at Wheelersburg located on the paved road and known as Crystal Springs has just been placed in our hands for sale as the owners are locating in another city. You can not help but admire this beautiful home with its abundance of shade and the fountain of cool clear water babbling forth continually from a supply which is piped from a spring near by.

There is not a prettier place for a cool summer home than this. There is a home of 9 rooms, all modern improvements such as complete bath, electricity throughout, hardwood floors upstairs and down, water upstairs and down supplied from a never failing spring from across the street, basement, screened in back porch, all large rooms, big closets. In addition to this home there is a 3 room tenant house, summer kitchen, double brick garage, also a garage across the paved street, 8 lots having a frontage of 400 feet on the south side and two acres of land on the opposite side from the home which is very suitable for platting. To have an opportunity of getting a home like this, you are fortunate. There are 6 vacant lots and the two acres of unplatted land could easily be sold which would lower the price considerably. Call for an appointment to see this attractive place.

Price To Those Interested

Collided Near Light House

A car driven by George Johnson, of the Manhattan restaurant, was badly damaged Saturday afternoon when it collided with a machine, driven by J. B. Moore, 3042 Gallia street.

Johnson was driving out from Lighthouse Beach and Moore was endeavoring to go from the main road into the road leading to the Beach when the collision occurred.

The Moore car was damaged on the left side. The left wheel was torn from the Johnson car, the front axle was bent, and the left fender and headlight were smashed. An auto wrecker towed the machine into town.

Market News

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, June 25.—Price changes were decidedly mixed at the opening of today's market. Selling pressure was directed against a number of the so-called pivotal stocks. U. S. Steel dropping a point and Studebaker, American Can, Crucible, California Petroleum and U. S. Rubber down fractionally. Gains of a point each were recorded by Bethlehem Steel and Stewart Warner.

Some buying support came into the market with Pan American, Pacific, Marland and a few others moving to higher ground but the rest of the list showed considerable irregularity. Woodworth and Steel and Tube one point each, American Radiator extended their losses to a point or more. Foreign exchanges opened easier.

Heavy selling of the motors apparently based on the belief that the peak of motor car production and sales had been reached for this year turned the whole list heavy before noon. Chandler was pushed down four points to a new low and Studebaker dropped 3 1/2 also to a new low. Vulnerability of the motors encouraged short selling of other popular shares, especially the steels, equipments, sugars, tobaccos, oils and cans. Trading in rail shares was sluggish with a number of the active issues yielding in sympathy with the industrials. Some of the largest losses were represented by Dugout, Mack Truck, Stewart-Warner, Pontiac, American, Strongberg, Maxwell Motors A., Houston and West Penn Power off 2 to 4 1/2 points. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

Heavy professional short selling, based on rumors of further price cuts in the automobile industry, brought about another sharp reaction in today's stock market. While motors were the hardest hit other standard shares and specialties reflected in varying degrees losses ranging from 1 to nearly 5 points. Sales approximated 750,000 shares.

The closing was weak.

Chicago Grain And Provisions

CHICAGO, June 25.—Rains and cooler weather in the spring market tended to ease the wheat market today during the earlier trading. With harvesting of winter wheat making progress northward the principal interest in crop conditions appeared to be directed to spring wheat. The opening quotations at Liverpool counted further as a bearish influence. The opening which varied from unchanged figures to 1/2 lower with Sept. 1.03 1/2 to 1.04 1/2 and December 1.06 1/2 to 1.07 1/2, was followed by a moderate general sag and then something of a rally.

Corn and oats were easier with wheat. After opening at 1/4 off to a like advance, Sept. 70, the corn market underwent a setback all around but then recovered most of the loss. The close was firm 1/4 to 1/2 net higher with Sept. 104 1/2 to 1.04 1/2 and Dec. 1.07 1/2.

Oats started a shade lower to 1/2 gain, Sept. 37 1/2 to 37 3/4 net. Later all the months showed a little decline.

Lower prices on hogs weakened the provision market.

Prices closed firm at 1/4 to 1/2 net advance Sept. 70 1/2 to 71 1/2.

Baby Drinks Iodine

While Mrs. Roy Black, of 4118 Monroe street, New Boston, was busily engaged with her household work Monday morning, her 4-year-old son, Ervin, eluded her vigilance and climbing to a shelf, secured a bottle containing all-most an ounce of iodine. The child drank most of it and then became violently ill.

Dr. Harold Schirman was called and administered an antidote and then pumped out the child's stomach. He stated late this afternoon that the child was virtually out of danger. It was unconscious for over an hour and it was first believed that it would die, but was saved by the prompt work of Dr. Schirman.

Is Walter Hagen connected with any club as golf pro?

Unless mistaken, Hagen's last engagement as golf professional was with the Oakland Hills Club of Detroit, a position now held by Mike Brady. Of late years Hagen has been a free-lance, confining himself more to competitive play than a connection with any club as professional in charge.

Please explain the exact meaning of "Bogey" from a golfing standpoint?

Bogey is a phantom player, usually given the title of Colonel. On every course Colonel Bogey is credited with a certain score for each hole, such a score being regarded as excellent for the hole. In playing a course a player constantly is trying to better the score of the phantom golfer, Colonel Bogey.

For how many years were the national championships in golf discontinued during the participation of this country in the World War?

No national events were held in 1917 and 1918. In 1916, Chick Evans won the amateur and open championships. On the resumption of the events in 1919, David Herron won the amateur and Walter Hagen the open title.

In medal play, Smith, by stepping just in back of his ball several times, greatly improves his lie. While admitting that such action improved the lie of the ball, Smith contends that he had no such intention when he stamped the ground down in back of the ball. What is the penalty? No consideration can be given the intent. If Smith improved the lie of his ball, he is open to a penalty of two strokes in medal play.

Ward Wins

The Ward, W. Va., team almost annihilated the Huntington team when they clashed in the latter city Sunday, the Wardites winning 16 to 3. Ollom and Midkiff, former State League stars, played with Ward.

Sunday School Attendance

Hot weather is playing havoc with the Sabbath School attendance. Sunday there was a decrease of 902 from the previous Sunday. Yesterday's total was 6219 while a week ago it was over the 7000 mark. First Christian and Trinity were the only schools over the 500 mark. Yesterday's record:

First Presbyterian	281
Sciotoville Christian	270
Bigelow	243
Wheelerburg M. E.	204
Sciotoville M. E.	102
Grandview Ave. Christian	100

French Talk Of Repeals

PARIS, June 25.—(By the United Press)—An official French protest against American seizure of liquors on steamers flying this country's flag, will be dispatched to Washington if the United States customs authorities go through their program of breaking the French seals. Premier Poincare favors delaying any other action until the next session of the American congress in the belief that the law be changed. Other officials are talking of reprisals under which American ships could be detained nearly a month every time they enter a French port.

British Press Very Much Riled

LONDON, June 25.—(By the Associated Press)—British newspapers, deplorative, caustic and indignant, say the ship liquor seizures by the United States authorities may lead to international complications and score their government for its passive attitude.

LUQUE WILD; REDS TRIMMED BY CHICAGO CUBS, 2 TO 0

CHICAGO, June 25—Grover Alexander held Cincinnati to three scattered hits in a pitching duel with Adelphi Luque and Chicago shut out the visitors 2 to 0. Luque's wildness proved his undoing, as two of the men he had walked crossed the plate the first run in the fifth inning, putting an end of the Cincinnati star's string of scoreless innings against his opponents. He had pitched twenty-nine innings without a run being made off him. It was also Luque's second defeat of the season in eleven games, the Cubs having won the other game off him. Incidentally, the Cuban's winning streak which had reached seven straight games, ended when Red reached checked. Only two Red's reached second base, one Harper, on a double and Bohne on a wild throw by Holler.

FEATURED BY ACCIDENTS

BROOKLYN, June 25—Wainwright's wildness gave the Dodgers a six-run lead in the first inning Sunday and they beat the Phillies easily, 6 to 4. Fournier made his second home run in two days in the fourth. Grimes allowed nine hits, one of them a homer by Tierney. It was a day of accidents, Winters, Hubbell and Taylor being hit by balls during practice, and Fournier, Bailey, Mogan and a woman spectator being hit during the game. The only person injured was the spectator, who was cut on the forehead.

Fullerton Wins Two Games

The Fullerton Giants won a doubleheader from Wheelersburg and the Labor Union teams Sunday. Slader from Fronton worked on the mound for Wheelersburg and was tagged pretty hard in the last few innings by the Kentuckians. The good work of Taylor, Sowards, Fannin and O. Kerns was a feature. The Labor Union team did not show much for their first game but gave the Giants good batting practice, and was shut out, 10 to 0. Fullerton has one of the best ball clubs around Portsmouth on open dates. Call W. E. Dodridge at Fullerton, Phone 9-R-11.

WASHINGTON HITS HARD

WASHINGTON, June 25—Washington enjoyed a banquet at the expense of Philadelphia Sunday, winning, 8 to 0. Blue led the Nationals' attack of 14 hits with two doubles and a single. Peckinpaugh and Harris struck in the field and at bat, each getting a home run. McGraw kept Philadelphia's hits well scattered and had perfect control.

Gibbons Says He Is Going To Look Jack Squarely In The Eye When They Meet

BY TOM GIBBONS
Challenger For The Heavyweight Championship
(Copyright, 1923, By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
SHELBY, MONT., June 25—Did you ever notice how superior you feel toward a man who doesn't look you right in the eye? I intend to walk right up to Dempsey for our instructions and never take my eyes off him until I turn to go to my corner. I do this with all opponents, having discovered that the effect on myself is as great as it is upon them. It stands to reason that I might not do well against a man I am afraid to look at.
Many boxers, however, look anywhere but at their opponents. I have been given to understand that Jack, for some reason, looks down at his feet, and never looks at the crowd, the seconds, the newspapermen—anywhere but upon the man he is about to fight.
Probably he knows what is best for him. For myself, I prefer my own method.

I well remember one boxer I met whose eyes bored right through me as we came in for instructions. He was Harry Foley, a man whom I figured to beat rather easily. Foley, however, thought he could beat me. His eyes proved that. And to make good on their threat he forced me to eight rounds of such fighting as I have seldom known before I could stop him.
However, it is the fists, not the eyes, that actually win a fight. I am doing my best to make mine sit up and behave. Nearly all of my workouts have been featured by special training in developing my punch to the highest possible efficiency and it is a matter of record that I have seldom wasted a punch since coming here to finish my conditioning.
To date I have specialized in a left hook and right cross. These are what I call my "finishers." If I hit a man on the buttons with either of them, the man usually goes down. On the other hand I have done very little jabbing. A left jab is a great thing against many boxers but I realize that I can't hope to keep Dempsey away with this punch when he comes boring in with it. I can't hope to knock him out with it, either, and since I have made up my mind that only one of us will leave the ring on his own feet, I am naturally concentrating much of my attention on my punching.

Will Baseball Prophets Make Good?

(By George Chadwick, Special Correspondent Times)
(Copyright 1923)
NEW YORK, June 25—What of the prophets, now that midseason in professional baseball is fast approaching? It seems only yesterday that the students of the game were making pre-season forecasts of the future. Did they have the right dope? Well, the national league is ambling along mightily close to predictions made at the course of the American league fight has the scores and revelations hanging on the ropes like a wet cotton bathing suit.
Except for an occasional local booster who wished to predict something different from his fellows, the dopsters were almost unanimous in selecting the Giants to be National league champions in 1923. The Giants taking all things into consideration, have followed the path laid out for them pretty closely. Those who were clever enough to say that New York was likely to be bothered by their pitchers foretold the future very accurately.
Some said Pittsburgh would be the contending team in the national league race. That has been the case, but those who said Pittsburgh would take New York by the throat were too confident. Pittsburgh has been mighty lucky not to have been shaken by the throat by some other team. That trade the Pirates made with Philadelphia was the best thing Barney Dreyfus's organization has done in two years.
Some western wise men thought Cincinnati would wreck the New York brownstone front before June. The Reds nearly were wrecked on their Eastern trip instead. Since then, however, the team has found itself and is more to be reckoned with than was the case earlier in the year. Thus the prophets were not

PLAYING HER GAME

THE public is dazed by seeing England sailing her ships into our ports carrying the usual equipment of liquor and brazenly defying Uncle Sam to come aboard and confiscate it. They thought England loved us so that she would show special respect and obedience to the particular law that has become a sort of national fetish. Therefore they wonder why and wherefore this flaunting affront, this audacious contempt for our most sanctified statute.

It is because England does love us, but she loves herself more. Be sure something is hidden behind the bald deft, something that England is going to turn to her own advantage. We do not know exactly what and how but there has just been suggested to us one way in which she can work the liquor and confiscate it. That will establish the doctrine, conclusive upon us surely, that one nation has a right to lay restrictions upon the ships of another nation, when they come within her three mile limit. Nothing could be worth more to England than such a doctrine, nothing so potent in keeping her mistress of the sea. She has forty ports to where the United States have one. So she'll be devising regulations by which no American ship can profitably enter her ports; more than that she knows a turn or two in diplomacy. She can beat us at that game, blindfolded and with her hands tied behind. She already has France and Italy with her on this liquor business. It will be no trick at all for her to get Spain, Portugal and other European nations. Then where will our ships be?

Dwell on that conundrum for awhile.

TAKING IT FOR GRANTED

A mother and six children were slaughtered at a railway crossing in Kentucky. The father was at the wheel and saved himself by jumping.

To be sure he knew no trains were due that time of day. It didn't make a particle of difference whether he and his family reached their destination five minutes or five hours later, but he was in a hurry and was going to get there as soon as he could. So he didn't look, but drove on to the track, where a train that had been delayed, demolished the car and extinguished his family in the twinkling of an eye. Had prudence been at the wheel with him he would have looked and listened on approaching the crossing and the accident would have been avoided.

In driving a car never take it for granted the course is clear, see that it is. Take no chances. Watch yourself and also watch the other fellow. Within a day or two we have our old acquaintance, Steering Gear, blamed in each of a series of mishaps. He's ever a convenient scape goat. But he is staunch and under prudent guidance always dependable. Of course, if he is called upon only in an emergency and when he is being carried at top speed he can't perform immediately his service. He has his limitations and within them is ever docile and true. Under any circumstances he does his best, but when Recklessness and Take A Chance call upon him in emergency he is sometimes unequal to the demand though he try his best.

Have a care, keep the car under control and automobile accidents will become a rarity.

ARE ALL NEIGHBORS

HOW closely the world is interlaced in its commercial relations is shown in the strong reflection in several European countries of failures of brokerage firms in New York.

These failures are said to have been a large factor in the heavy dullness in London's financial markets, while they are keenly felt in Germany. As two of the houses dealt extremely in German securities it was inevitable they would have some effect upon the land issuing the securities, but the fact that their dealings were of such magnitude in foreign paper is in itself witness that the whole world is getting close together in a trade way.

We are not able to appreciate this so keenly as foreigners because we have a stable currency and are riding on the crest of prosperity so a failure here or there, though it does involve millions, is not taken as consequential. Commerce and manufacture move on undisturbed by a mere splash. To Europe, however, with its finances all out of kilter and everything chaotic, each million is of heavy import and every setback a catastrophe.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 25.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Early up for one of shiftless habits and to sit awhile with Ray Bohn, the limner, who tells me of his new daughter, Mary Jane, and mightily proud he is, too.

Came an invitation from A. Lasker to be among his guests on the trial voyage of the Leviathan to Cuban waters. Worked awhile, but a crazy courier running through my poor head so I could do but little. My dog is with Bohn again.

In the afternoon to see Dean Corwell, the artist, but he out, so to row awhile in Central Park lake and full of noble thoughts as I watched the sun to rest.

With my wife, poor wretch, to dine.

Cherry Street is the center of a thriving Italian colony. Not a day passes they are not some outdoor celebration expressing the Latin's urge for elaborate decorations and festive spirit. Each section has its favorite saint and not a week goes by without a Saint's Day feast. The residents sing, kneel in prayer and dance in the street and on the sidewalk. They resent motorists and many times throw vegetables after them. One wonders when the people get time for work down there for the celebrations begin at dusk and last until dawn.

Being Mayor of New York offers the greatest difficulties in successfully dodging the horde of visitors—cranks, petitioners, men and women with petty grievances who must "see His Honor personally" and so on. The reception room at City Hall is constantly crowded and it is the secretary's duty to separate what from what. There are some who come back day after day and remain from morning until closing hours. One woman, it was found, had been waiting a week. She was anxious to let the Mayor know she had seen a policeman in her district smoking a cigarette. In an effort to divert the visitors there was recently installed a radio set in the waiting room. Some wag has suggested emergency sleeping quarters should also be installed. One day the present Mayor decided to see everybody he could during the day in the order of their arrival. When he closed his desk at 5 o'clock he had seen more than 100 people and found that with one exception each was looking for some personal gain by the visit. BERTON BRADLEY'S DAILY POEM

Practically Extinct

By Berton Bradley

If you've never found work a trifle zestless,
As you felt a little longing for the trail;
If you've never known a fever that is restless
And a sense of growing moribund and stale;
If you haven't ever thought you'd like to ramble,
Leaving everything behind that you have known;
Dropping all the safe-and-sane stuff for a gamble,
Risking everything and anything you own;

If you've always been entirely calm and steady
With the firmness of a lighthouse on a rock,
If the springtime hasn't ever made you heady,
If your pulses beat as certain as a clock;
If no silly raving madness ever thrills you,
If your sanity and prudence are your guides,
And no thought of breaking traces ever fills you,
If you're just as safe to count on as the tides;

If you've planned your life with absolute acumen,
And you've never deviated, not an inch;
You're undoubtedly a useful man or woman,
And to bet upon your progress is a cinch!

If no wild and woolly notions ever harry you,
You can pride yourself on being cool of head,
But they really ought to take you out and bury you,
For although you may not know it—
You are dead!

A Glad Departure

On a gravestone in Busby Churchyard, England, this quaint epitaph was found:
"Here lies a poor woman who always was tired."

For she lived in a place where help wasn't hired;
Her last words on earth were, "Dear friends, I am going."

Where washing ain't done nor sweeping nor sewing,
And everything there is exact to my wishes.

For where they don't eat, there's no washing of dishes;
Don't mourn for me now, don't mourn for me never,
For I'm going to do nothing for ever and ever."

Pussy In The Well

Why are you crying so, little man?
"My sister's cat died today."

"How sweet! And did you love your sister's cat so dearly?"

"Naw, but you gimme a hickin' for throwin' it in the well!"

Hard To Console

Visiting Minister—"Ah, my dear unfortunate friend, this world is full of trials."

Convict—"It ain't the trials that worry me; it's the verdicts."

He Got In

The salesman found servant baring his road. He suspected that the woman of the house was within hearing. He raised his voice.

"I am in search of a lady whose name I have forgotten, but who can easily be described. She has soft, lovely hair, the complexion of a peach, a graceful manner, and a bear."

"Mary," cried a voice upstairs, "tell the gentlemen to come in. I'll be down at once."

A Glean of Hope

The following conversation took place between an old Scotch professional and a would-be golfer. The amateur had asked what the other thought of his game.

"Na, ye'll no mak a golfer," he said. "Ye've begun over late. But it's just possible if ye practice hard, ye'll be hard for two-three years yet."

"Yes!" inquired the other, expectantly.

"Ye might begin to hae a glimmer that ye'll never ken the rudiments of the game."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Needed New Parts

My brother bought a motor here last week," said an angry man to the salesman that stepped up to greet him, "and he said if anything broke you would supply him with new parts."

"Certainly," said the salesman. "What does he want?"

"He wants a couple of kneecaps, one elbow, and about half a yard of cucule," said the man. "And he wants them at once."

There was a young woman / Who lived in a stew,
She had so many sweethearts
She didn't know what to do.

Most Important Man

"Have you seen Zeke Dawdle lately?"

"No," said Squire Witherspoon, "but Zeke's making his headquarters down where they're puttin' up a new store."

"Is Zeke working at last?"

"No, it ain't that serious. Zeke's kinder superstitious th' job along with several other gents whose wives run boardin' houses. If at workmen were to lay a brick or raise a girder without Zeke seelz' it done it would spoil his day."—Birmingham Age Herald.

The Installment House

Mr. Spendix—"Ain't installment due on the house?"

Mrs. Spendix—"No."

Mr. Spendix—"On the radio?"

Mrs. Spendix—"No."

Mr. Spendix—"On the rug?"

Mrs. Spendix—"No."

Mr. Spendix—"On the fur coat?"

Mrs. Spendix—"No."

Mr. Spendix—"Then I have ten dollars we don't need. What do you say we buy a new car?"
